

Tech solutions for 90 more Oman schools

Khaleej Times - 05 January, 2007

Ninety more schools in Oman will soon be equipped with technology-enabled learning solutions that have proved to strengthen critical thinking and comprehension of students, taking the total number of such schools to 590.

The move is part of the Education Ministry's plans to introduce children to technology by integrating it with all areas of learning to help them hone essential 21st century skills through optimum use of technology. The total value of the 'EDUTECH' solutions being implemented in the 90 schools by Edutech Middle East, is more than RO95,000. In the last five years, the ministry has invested in EDUTECH solutions worth approximately RO315,000. 'The Ministry of Education has been committed to introducing innovative education techniques across schools in the country, with an aim to create a whole new learning experience for students while diverging from the norms of traditional classroom education,' Education Minister Yahya bin Saud Al Sulaimi said.
